The affirmative power to establish, dislodge, and there are no such powers in this Government.

The power to abolish or exclude is not given, and the property character of slaves includes them within one of the positive prohibitions of the Constitution.
All the power this Government has to recognize as property in the Territories, whatever is recognized as such in the States, and it need be no less officially and impartially—to adopt such regulations for its security and protection as the nature of the case may require. Congress cannot abate its authority. If so, the executive and judiciary can do likewise.

The Federal Government, through some or all of its departments, must recognize and protect what the States ascertain & determine to be property. War-and treaties are made to defend, and are, in many instances, dependent upon what the States decide to be property. An American citizen whose slave is enslaved on the high seas

can demand protection of his Government; a particular, when that property is enslaved on territory belonging to the United States. In the language of a resolution adopted by the Alabama Democratic convention in 1850, and reaffirmed, in 1860—the sentiment of which was taken from the speech of a northern Democrat in this House—the South is entitled to the protection of its property in the States, in the Territories, and in the wilderness, where territorial governments are as yet unorganized. To refuse it would deny equal rights to all.

It may be said that there are judicial questions and mere abstractions, which can be safely left to the future,
to be determined as exigencies may ar-rise. In a late memorable case, appeals have been made from the Supreme Court to popular prejudice and passion, and interpretations of the decision in full of instances of judicial subsidiety, and political opinions very often control judicial decisions. The famous Somersett case, the dismal spring of unnumbered woes, was decided under circumstances that reflect credit to the moral courage of the member judge. The proposition of Senator STEWARD, to put the Supreme Court on the side of freedom is fearfully admonitory of the influence of popular opinion on the judiciary. If I could but my voice so as to be heard by the South, if she would heed the admonition

ECONOMY & PROFESSIONS.
In this, the age of advancement, many things new and improved have been introduced, which are improvements and changes of older ages, but new ones of sound and practical utility. In no department is progression better marked or more visibly to be seen than in the medical world, originating with continual researches and experiments.

Precisely of that character are the following medicinal agents, none will prove more efficient, or are so often needed.

DR. LITTLE'S ANDONYDINE DROP.

A new and certain remedy for Cough, Asthma Pain in the Breasts, also Croup, Whooping Cough, Colds, etc. among children.

This is a pleasant medicine to take, and does immediate relief, and in nine out of ten cases of a chronic character it exercises the power of a specific, and cures the disease without any violent or disagreeable sensation stepping the most violent in a few hours, or at most in a day or two. Many cases have been decidedly consolidated, and removed from the system, and the cure has been perpetually continued, and the disease analyzed. As an invigorant expectorant, without straining the bowels, it stands paramount to all cough mixtures.

DR. LITTLE'S FRENCH MIXTURE.

This is prepared from a French Recipe (in the forms of No. 1 and 2, the first for the acute, and No. 2 for the chronic stage) that has been much improved upon in this country, & now consists of a mixture of the best and most valuable ingredients, and is equal to any other Remedy for the cure of the diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Gon-orrhœal Bleeding and Leucorrhœal or Fluorous Affection. This extensive compilation of the best and most reliable remedies from every quarter of the globe, and of every class, can be had in any druggist's shop, or in any private practice, and in point of safety and efficiency is not rivalled in America.

DR. LITTLE'S VITRIOLIC.

Prepared and put up in bottles and vials only by G. W. Little. In using, nothing else is required to relieve children of worms and bedevils better or faster, and cheaper, and afforded by any other physician, and will give more trouble and expense as well as the lives of many children, for right out of every ten cases generally require it.

DR. LITTLE'S RINGWORM & TELLER.

Hundreds of cases of Chronic Tetter, Sore Heads, and disease of the skin generally, have been cured by this remedy, and since the introduction of the No. 2 preparation (being soothing, easily digestible, and agreeable that it will be well liked by children), it will be more popular and expedient in use, and will be a great convenience to parents, and to all who are fond of their children.

DR. LITTLE'S PLASTER.

The undersigned having taken charge of Mrs. J. A. Stevenson's Brick Merchant Mill, 2 miles south of Jacksonville, respectfully informs the public that he has put them in good order and will make much and good flour flour, and any Mills in the country. Corn also ground in a manner that cannot fail to please.

"What becomes of me?" Beggar seems to be my lot, but "what becomes of me?" I have panted, and looked the ring of death.

"Undoubtedly I should decease you, Mr. Elliott," said I, after making such further inquiries. "If I were to say that there were no life left in me, and that the female servant, she sank gently down, supporting her head upon her bosom, and looked upward, her eyes to heaven, and an awful expression settled upon her motionless features, I could hardly tell more. I laid her beside her master, who lay like a log, his eyes fixed insinuously upon hers, and the sons of several of the servants, who had stolen silently to the top of the kitchen stairs to get a sight of the strange scene, were the only ones who durst approach him. At length he rose from her bier, slowly and painfully.

"When will my mother be buried?"

"Next Saturday," whispered Joseph, "at 2 P.M."

"I'll go to her funeral."

"Farewell, Joseph. You have been very kind," said she, moving slowly to the door.

"Won't you let me get you a little of this warm water?—I do so look at you."

"Adam!—I am too ill to go to bed."

"I'll bring you some tea or sponge," he added.

"No, José!—I am better, and Mr. Elliott is waiting for me at the door."

The girl turned back to her bier, and then, passing through the doorway, but the reflected light from the window, she returned.

"José! I am very delicate, but yet Providence will not let me starve. I cannot die from hunger."

"With pleasure, José, I will go to bed."

"A moment of length," he explained, "a few hours, and then—she would have been dead, if she had not been so strong." "She was a good woman, and a good servant," he said, "but unfortunately there does exist a ground for apprehension that unless you restrain, and in a great measure, from so severely taxing your exertion as you have of late, you will run the risk of permanently injuring it."

"Oh, doctor! it is easy to talk!" he exclaimed, with involuntary bitterness, "but my ceasing to use and try my sight; but how can I do it? How man to live? Tell me that! What is the secret of the human heart? What is the secret of life and child? What is the secret of love?—Merciful God! had just at this time, too! My wife was present!"—and flushed Gauley was in a peacock almost slipping from her hands and I, who should be the stay and support of my family, becoming mad! "Oh, God! what a frightful change! what a change!—I must be mad!—I must be mad!"—he uttered, in a tone of despair, and then, with a gesture of despair, he turned pale—"if I were to die now, what good could it do?" At that moment the slow, heavy, wearied step of his wife was heard upon the stairs, and her entrance put an end to his lunatic exclamations. I called him to him, and, with a few words, calmed him, and pacified some native remedies, and he promised to obey my instructions. Mrs. Elliott sat beside me with an exhausted air, which touched me almost to tears. What a situation, what a prospect was hers! How was she to prepare for her coming confinement? how prevent the most ordinary accidents, the necessary attendants, and the perplexities of her confinement, in her edited situation. She went listlessly; but the event had been too long expected by her to occasion a violent exhibition of grief. As they lay awake that night in melancholy converse, it suddenly occurred to Mrs. Elliott that the son, who had just happened to be born, was the first to inherit her father's advice, and that she determined to seize the opportunity of appealing to his feelings when they were softened by his recent bereavement. The next morning they set out on their dreary pilgrimage to—Square, it being agreed that he should accompany her to within a door or two of his father's house, and there make all the arrangements, what was to become of them? Who, surely, knew? He soon learned that a plainly showed that all these dreadful topics constantly agitated her mind!

A day or two after this interview I heard them in the intelligence I had seen in the columns of the Advertiser, that Mrs. Elliott had died, which confirmed all that I had so fearfully foretold of the effect it might produce upon Mrs. Elliott in her edited situation. She went listlessly; but the event had been too long expected by her to occasion a violent exhibition of grief. As they lay awake that night in melancholy converse, it suddenly occurred to Mrs. Elliott

for the Apparatus
"Where are they?"

A week of sunshine and beauty has passed since we last met. A week of misery added to the long long night of those living in the "total Eclipse" of blindness.

"Where are they?" We have asked with awakened interest in their sad situation. "Where are our Alabama blind?" Come here! Deeply interested we will now seek them. In this elegant dwelling surrounded by finely cultivated grounds and shaded by stately trees, he sits which such fine shrubbery is growing. A few years since a child was lying very low with scrofulous fever, it seemed it would be blind all his life. Indeed. "We will see." It seems we will not enjoy the gentle breeze under this fine shade, and inhaling the perfume of those rare exotics, that even blindness would be quite tolerable in the midst of so much luxury, for indeed here with closed eyes, we enjoy a high degree of luxurious perception. "The heir to this beautiful estate is blind?—We enquire!—It is true he is very near being so, but his parents were wealthy and such very good agents were given to him, as well as to his eyes, that although he was confined to his room, he enjoyed a large chamber fitted with green for his benefit and thereby despaired of his recovery, so he became well enough to visit every celebrated Oculist in a dozen cities, and he is not blind!"

"Let him ever thank God, for the blessings of wealth, we say as we leave his palatial home, to prosecute the search we have begun, for the Alabama blind."

In yonder comfortable farm dwelling was expected a few years since to be one of the unfortunate we seek, but he will call there, and as we are on our way will bring to mind the circumstances as we then heard them. While playing an arrow rebounded, and cut off his right eye, and such a high degree of sympathetic inflammation in his left eye followed that the best physicians in the country expressed opinions all agreeing that his sight must be irrecoverably lost. He is double blind! We enquire again. "We are mistaken! His mother had servants attend to all his usual duties; and all her time was devoted to his suffering child. So very anxious was she that servant, who slept during the day, watched and awakened her at every hour of the night that she might herself apply the fresh cool balm to the injured organ. The boy recovered and enjoys the blessings of sight from one eye. Again, we say "let him thank God for the blessings of wealth!"

ELECTION NOTICE.

WILL open and hold an election on the 1st Monday in May next, at the place of voting in each Election Precinct.

THE "Highways and Byways" the "Highways and Edges" to the "Homes of the lowly."

THE "cabins of the poor." Ah! here we are and them. Children exposed to cold in their infancy often have "sore eyes" and the hard working mother has no servant to relieve, or awaken her, to attend to her afflicted child! The little sufferer even while lying on her arms uncovered and takes fresh cold, while its worn and exhausted mother sleeps. The inmates of this cabin are honest people. They are too poor to have a physician called for a little infant troubled with "sore eyes." No! the little child calls him to their door. Improper treatment completes the destruction of the delicate organ! The table is blind!

The Scarlet Fever and Measles leaves many blind among the poor and neglecting vaccination the small pox enters their doors and if death spares them, it is offered to the living death of poverty and darkness.

Ah! yes! Here we find them! In the cabins of the lowly! Burdens too often find them to their relations who feel it is a hard life they lead in providing for their own necessities. They are never "abandoned" burdens to their mothers, but mothers die. And the wall of the poor blind orphan is the most pitiful of all. As she is lowered into her last resting place.

The blind in all conditions of life are extremely sensitive accustomed always to the feeling that they are "in the way" and shrinking and striving to "keep out of the way" together with a sense of usefulness and dependence generally, they become morbidly sensitive, and may be almost hysterical.

John, the Judge of the Peccary, and the Constables of our election precincts for their respective precincts.

ELECTION NOTICE.

WILL open and hold an election on the 1st Monday in May next, at the place of voting in each Election Precinct.

THE "Highways and Byways" the "Highways and Edges" to the "Homes of the lowly."

THE "cabins of the poor." Ah! here we are and them. Children exposed to cold in their infancy often have "sore eyes" and the hard working mother has no servant to relieve, or awaken her, to attend to her afflicted child! The little sufferer even while lying on her arms uncovered and takes fresh cold, while its worn and exhausted mother sleeps. The inmates of this cabin are honest people. They are too poor to have a physician called for a little infant troubled with "sore eyes." No! the little child calls him to their door. Improper treatment completes the destruction of the delicate organ! The table is blind!

Ah! yes! Here we find them! In the cabins of the lowly! Burdens too often find them to their relations who feel it is a hard life they lead in providing for their own necessities. They are never "abandoned" burdens to their mothers, but mothers die. And the wall of the poor blind orphan is the most pitiful of all. As she is lowered into her last resting place.

The blind in all conditions of life are extremely sensitive accustomed always to the feeling that they are "in the way" and shrinking and striving to "keep out of the way" together with a sense of usefulness and dependence generally, they become morbidly sensitive, and may be almost hysterical.

John, the Judge of the Peccary, and the Constables of our election precincts for their respective precincts.

FIELDING LOVE.

March 20, 1860.

The Inspectors will hold each election separately, and make return to me, the Judge's election, and the Superior's to the Judge of Probate.

We are authorized to announce John Hardy, Esq. of the Selma Sentinel, who is now in our place, for the following telegraph:—despatch of the first day's proceedings of the Charleston Convention.

Charleston Convention.

FIRST DAYS PROCEEDINGS' COMMITTEES APPOINTED.

CHARLESTON, April 23.—The Democratic National Convention met at noon to day.

Judge Smiley called the Convention to order.

On motion, Col. Thos. R. Flournoy, of Arkansas, was appointed temporary Chairman, by acclamation. Wm. F. Hiebie, of Virginia, was appointed Secretary.

Convention opened with prayer by Rev. Mr. Henkle.

A Committee consisting of two from each State was appointed to report on permanent organization.

A Committee was also appointed to report on credentials.

Adjourned to Tuesday 10 o'clock.

The city is crowded with strangers from all parts of the Union. A very exciting time is anticipated.

Col. A. B. Clitheroe.

We publish in this week's paper, to which we invite attention, the letter of the Hon. A. B. Clitheroe, to the Editor of the Pickens Republican, in response to the request previously made by him, calling on Judge Clitheroe for his reasons for voting for the 3 per cent. Bill passed at the last session of the Legislature.

We are gratified to know that Judge C. will in future give his views in extenso, and fully agree with the Editor of the Republican, that there is no member of the late Legislature better able to oscillate and swing in solid columns, an exposition of all the facts and reasons in favor of the 3 per cent. bill, than Judge Clitheroe. We are rejoiced to see that one possessing the talents of the "Speaker" of that place, FAIRFAX ASCENSION.—Professor Well, an Etonian attempted an ascent in this city on Saturday last, which came very near proving disastrous to him.—The balloon having been injured he stepped into the basket and gave the word "let go" and was not obeyed, but immediately afterwards when he was not ready they did let go, and the wind blowing from the West the balloon with lightning speed was borne upwards, he straining forward and back with his feet in the basket, fastened a rope half than a turn to the side of a glass Hall kitchen then the cage of the balloon, knelling on the ship, and afterwards the cage of the glass Hall, striking which last time it hung him up five feet, from the basket, dangling in air, looking mainly by his hands to the ropes. With a snatched prayer in mind on arriving just over the Glass Hall while some eight feet from the roof he swung loose from the earth, and lit on the ground.

He had therefore raised to a height of about six feet, and was evidently well. I was sent as a delegate from the County of Talladega, and attended every sitting from the organization to the adjournment and I do not hesitate to assert that a conservative disposition was manifested in all its deliberations upon questions involving political principles. The delegates in the main, seemed to have two great, yet important objects in view—the preservation of the rights of the slaveholding States, without trenching upon the rights of others—and on that basis, the preservation of the Union.

The committee raised to prepare a platform was composed of two delegates from each Congressional district, each district, through its delegates in the Convention, selecting two. In this way the sentiments of the Democracy of each State were fairly represented. As far as possible to insure success and prosperity. We hope it may prove eminently so in this case; and that the friends and patrons of the cause,

WE invite the attention of the purchasers of jewelry, to the most extensive auction sale of J. C. Billings & Co., to commence on the 26th inst. The ladies will doubtless find in their large stock, many valuable articles suited to their fancy. This is not the time, there may have been men in it who desire a dissolution of the Union, and are per se disunionists, but the number was evidently small. I was sent as a delegate from the County of Talladega, and attended every sitting from the organization to the adjournment and I do not hesitate to assert that a conservative disposition was manifested in all its deliberations upon questions involving political principles. The delegates in the main, seemed to have two great, yet important objects in view—the preservation of the rights of the slaveholding States, without trenching upon the rights of others—and on that basis, the preservation of the Union.

We have heretofore stated that in the course of long experience and observation, we had noticed that kindly remembrance of the Printer, was gone with the sentiments of the Democracy of each State more fairly represented. As far as possible to insure success and prosperity. We hope it may prove eminently so in this case; and that the friends and patrons of the cause,

WE acknowledge with pleasure the reception, on Saturday last, of a beautiful silver cup, with the inscription—Presented to J. F. Grant, by W. Coleman Land.

We have heretofore stated that in the course of long experience and observation, we had noticed that kindly remembrance of the Printer, was gone with the sentiments of the Democracy of each State more fairly represented. As far as possible to insure success and prosperity. We hope it may prove eminently so in this case; and that the friends and patrons of the cause,

WE understand has proposed to make one or two ascensions from this place during the present and next week, for an amount sufficient to purchase cloth for a new balloon, which is already being made up. The one burned contained 1000 yards of cloth and was 75 feet in height and 150 in circumference.

See in another column, the new advertisement of Jones, Scott, Omberg & Co.

These gentlemen, we have been informed are selling extraordinary cheap bargains in Dry Goods. But you can find out all about this, by stepping into their store while in Rome.

OUR NEW SPILL has been finished, received by the Commissioners, and used in the reception of a prisoner, all within the last week. We understand the prisoner expressed himself better pleased with his new house than the old one from which he was transferred.

These doctrines are asserted on the subject of protection to slave property in the Territories, couched partly in the same language, which the Democracy of this State deemed it proper to assert in its State Convention, held respectively in 1818 and 1856.

That there may be no mistake in this respect, I submit extracts from the CENSUS.—According to the act of Congress, no deputy will be allowed over twenty thousand inhabitants. Those who may be appointed by the United States Marshall will be required to commence operations on the first of June and conclude their work six weeks thereafter.—This arrangement will make small districts a necessity.

Frost.—We had a slight frost on yesterday morning 25th inst. We fear that it has injured young corn and cotton in low places.

Messrs. J. B. & G. H. Forney, as will be seen, by reference to their editorial comments in another column, have received their usually large and splendid assortment of new, beautiful and fashionable goods; and are now ready to wait on their friends and customers, in supplying their wants with every variety of goods of superior quality upon the most reasonable terms. We have selected from the public square, north of the Court House. A large number of persons of the town and vicinity collected at various places around the square to witness the fact. The inflation furnace for inflating his balloon was erected on the public square, north of the Court House. A large number of persons of the town and vicinity collected at various places around the square to witness the fact. The inflation furnace was erected at 4 o'clock, and was continued about two hours, the furnace being supplied during the time with wood and pine, and alcohol heated several times to hasten the process. When fully inflated, Mons. Wells got into his hoop and basket, which was suspended by small cords—one 8 or 10 feet below the balloon and gave orders to those holding it down to "let go". In lifting the bottom over the chimney of the furnace however, the lower edge of the cloth of which it was made took fire. Some of those holding it told the aeronaut, and tried to put it out, but he not understanding them again gave orders to "let go", which they did. He arose rapidly and majestically, waving his cap over his head, while the numerous spectators below, rent the air with their loud and repeated hurrahs. It reached an altitude where M. Wells did not look much larger than a man's hand, and was wafted by a gentle breeze in a northeast direction, and landed in a large oak tree about a mile from the court house. Mons. W. discovered the fire when the balloon had got several hundred feet high, and used all the means in his power to effect a speedy landing, fearing the fire might burn the cords and kill him. Soon after landing, the fire, which perhaps had been kept from running up the balloon by its rapid motion, blazed up and soon burnt most of its ashes. When he reached the tree he caught some limbs while his balloon fell over on the other side and below, out of his reach, and about out of reach of those who were soon on the ground, and assisted him, not without considerable difficulty to get down out of the tree. The blazing balloon was distinctly seen from town, and caused some painful apprehension for his safety, which however was soon relieved by his safe return.

Mons. Wells informs us that he has made in all about 140 ascensions, and caused some painful apprehension for his safety, which however was soon relieved by his safe return.
